

Suzanne Leta

Global Market Strategy

SunPower

Suzanne Leta leads global market strategy for SunPower. Her role focuses on shifting global market and policy dynamics and its impact on SunPower manufacturing, product development and sales in all business segments - residential, commercial and utility-scale. Her responsibilities include directing new strategic business initiatives, guiding corporate multi-year planning, early stage business development, and new market entry.

Suzanne brings fifteen years of experience in clean energy to the SunPower team. She came to SunPower after leading the U.S. power and renewables business for Atkins, a global design, engineering and project management consultancy. Her experience also includes utility-scale project development at RES Americas. Prior to entering the for-profit sector, Suzanne directed clean energy, climate change and energy efficiency policy initiatives for non-profit advocacy organizations. She holds a BA, Summa Cum Laude, from the University of Pennsylvania.
