

THOMAS J. TIMMINS

Thomas J. Timmins is a partner in Gowling WLG's Toronto office. He is widely recognized as a leading lawyer in energy, P3 project development, infrastructure and commercial transactions. Tom has led several of the firm's most significant power and infrastructure sector transactions and acts regularly for a wide range of corporations, investors, governments and financial institutions around the world.

In his commercial practice, Tom leads mergers and acquisitions, corporate reorganizations, financings, partnerships and joint ventures across a range of industries, including energy, infrastructure, manufacturing, resources and finance. He has acted for investors and financiers in project finance transactions, capital financings, technology licensing transactions, project co-development agreements and strategic alliances. He has also acted for governments and government agencies on P3 procurements, electrification strategy development and renewable energy procurement.

Tom serves as leader of Gowling WLG's China Initiative. He also serves as chair of Gowling WLG's Global Renewable Energy Practice Group, as a member of the United Nations Environment Programme Finance Initiative (UNEP FI) Greenhouse Gas Protocol Working Group, and as a member of the Federal Caucus of Energy Storage Canada.

He also serves on a number of public, private and social sector boards, is a regular speaker and law school lecturer on energy and infrastructure, appears regularly in national and international news media and has been quoted in such leading news sources such as The Economist, The Globe and Mail, The Financial Post, World Journal, BNN and Canadian Business.
